TOWN TALK.

The Henry Frank, from Memphis, is unloading at the upper levee 7501 bales of cotton, 2763 sacks oil cake and 850 sacks seed. The Fred A. Blanks, from Vicksburg, had 4101 bales of cotton and 1987 sacks seed and the S. H. Parlett, from Vicksburg and Yazoo river, had 3890 bales of cotton, 5742 sacks cotton seed meal and 540 sacks seed.

New Orleans has a literary club called the Dickens Club, no doubt in honor of that prolific novelist and great humorist, Charles Dickens. This club holds bimonthly meetings, and every six months they give a grand social and literary entertainment, which is attended by the elite of the city. At their last meeting they discussed whether poets were "cranks." After a long and brilliant display of oratory on both sides of the questions the negative side won. This will place Oscar Wilde on a better basis than heretofore.

The Chalmette Hotel

WHAT A PROMINENT GENTLEMAN HAS TO SAY ON THE SUBJECT.

A STATES reporter was walking down the street last evening through the mud and slush, and when at the corner of Canal and Carondelet streets he was compelled to take refuge under the shed at that corner, on account of the heavy shower that came up. While contemplating the gloomy aspect of the weather that would cause the base ball match to be postponed, his attention was attracted by a gentleman running across the street, out of the rain. As he got under the shed, and after shaking himself and umbrella at the same time, the reporter accosted him and and asked what was there new.

"New?" said the gentleman. "What little news I did know has been dampened by this wet weather."

"Come now, wake up your memory and try and give me an item. For instance, let me interview you about the hotel that will soon built," said the reporter.

"Well, fire ahead," said the gentleman.

"Tell me, what do you think of the project?"

"Well, my opinion is that the object is a feasible one, and is susceptible of consummation."

"Do you think that it will be a success?"

"Yes if the project, as advanced by the committee who lobbied Act No. 38 in the charge, is approved, its success is unquestionable."

In this connection I will state that all of the committee that have been working up the enterprise have expressed all of the details concerning the character, cost of erection and thorough equipment of a first class hotel, and have submitted the most minute tabulated statements, which, if examined by those who desire to be interested, will prove eminently satisfactory.

Those thoroughly conversant with matters of this kind have lent their aid in endeavoring to consummate the project.

"Tell me, do you think that there will be any trouble in raising the requisite amount of money?"

"Owing to the great necessity of a hotel of this character it is believed by the projectors that there will be little trouble in obtaining the requisite sum. This was clearly shown by prompt and liberal subscriptions offered at the last meeting. This may be considered as a forerunner of subsequent support, as a canvassing committee has selected to forward this worthy object. Their influence will no doubt be felt in a liberal aid from all the capitalists of this city." By this time the shower had broken up, and the gentleman said that it was his dinner hour, begged to be excused.

Sullivan the Base Ballist.

HOW HE PREPARED A RECEPTION FOR A REPORTER.

Mr. Sullivan, who has charge of the St. Louis team of ball players, is a pleasant gentleman who recognizes any man he ever shook hands with if he meets him on the second hand-shaking occasion at the antipodes. He especially likes newspapermen, and once prepared a reception for a St. Louis newspaper man which the newspaper man has never forgotten. The gentleman whom Mr. Sullivan desired to honor was Dave Reed, the well known sporting editor of the Missouri Republican. Reed had produced a very complimentary notice of Sullivan—something above the average—and Sullivan felt grateful. In St. Louis there is Kerry Patch; in Kerry Patch there is a community of Irishmen as perfect in their way and as uncontaminated by their slight contact with the Anglo-Saxons about them as if they had never left their own green isle. They are very demonstrative, and wholly Mr. Sullivan or any other Irishman who has become great. So Mr. Sullivan called his countrymen in his service and prepared a reception for Mr. Reed. Your Kerry Patcher is at home only in his own dooryard (which is conventional) and refers from embarrassment if forced to become conspicuous elsewhere, so the reception was arranged for such a time as Mr. Reed should be found within the sacred centres of the Patch. When word came, through Mr. Sullivan, that Mr. Reed was to appear the Patchers fitted out in force, full armed (with shillalahs soft stones) and full uniformed (with brogues of blue and napless hats). Mr. Reed promptly put in an appearance, saw the Patch in array, and misconstrued the intent. There are stories still afoot of how he flitted through the streets in the twilight that evening like a ghost, or a canine with a can tied to his tail. In some mysterious manner he recognized Sullivan as the instigator, and he believes that Sullivan sought his life. Sullivan is innocent and most deeply grieved; but if you find the great base ball manager's name in the columns of the Republican, it will be when Dave Reed is no more.

A committee from the Grand Army of the Republic will tender General Logan a reception on his return from the prairies.

The passage of the steamship Silvertown out of the passes will settle the long lasting dispute as to her seaworthiness.

Race horses are beginning to arrive in our city and the races will in a short time be in progress.

As the season advances the city is becoming crowded with the usual number of thieves. Citizens should keep their hall doors securely locked.

When will the civil sheriff be given a van to convey prisoners from the parish prison to the criminal court? Has the petition for one been pigeon-holed?

The Bethel will again open its doors to the public. Last night it was filled with people that institution to-night, and a good audience is expected to be present.

When will some of the heavy betters in the McEnery and Pitkin fight put up some money and get it in the business, "put up or shut up" should be the watchword.

The boys who have purchased their winter overcoats are anxious for a chance to display them. The weather for a cold snap, and very many are congratulated at the mild weather of this morning.

Business at the restaurant of the Christian Women's Exchange continues to increase. It is a great resort for ladies and every fine lunch is served there for a small price.

The commissioners of public works is continually receiving petitions from different city wards to repair bridges along their routes, which notifications receive little notice from the roads.

Some of the dry goods merchants on Dryades street keep their stores open at work until half-past eight o'clock in the evening. Why do they not enter into the six o'clock arrangement?

Signor Parasta is a man of enterprise. He issued five hundred complimentary tickets yesterday for his show next week. He will have all new people then who are up in their business.

To go in running races on the river should not run so close to shore, or some more cotton will be set on fire by sparks from their smoke stacks, as was done last Saturday.

Politics in this city seems to be a little mixed. The Parish Democracy, the Independents, the Republicans and the McEnery men are all watching the actions of each other, and awaiting future movements.

Kate Carroll, who had an affidavit made against her in the second recorder's court the other day, has since filed a signer of pawn's store, as the papers state, and has never had any connection with his shop.

Yesterday the grand parade of Signor Farantz's four-in-hand was the event of the day. With prancing steeds and music playing he went through the principal streets throwing nickels, copper and handbills to the hundred or more little gamins attracted by the distribution of the tickets. Everyone seemed to like the thing, and the boys enjoyed it very much, although they got soaking wet.

Trade and Labor Assembly Commissioners.

The ten commissioners appointed to the New Orleans Cotton Centennial Exposition by the Trades Assembly met yesterday at the Screwmen's Hall, corner of Bienville street and Exchange Alley, and organized by calling Mr. R. S. Patton of the Marine Engineers Association, president and Mr. D. P. White, of the Typographical Union, secretary.

We understand that the various associations of this city are preparing to exhibit specimens of their handiwork, and that the Trades Assembly will be represented by a very creditable exhibit.

An Absconding Postmaster Captured.

Postoffice Inspector H. B. Lanier left city yesterday for Jewett, Leon county, Texas, for the purpose of conveying to Jacksonville, Florida, E. J. Bond, ex-postmaster of Sumpterville, Florida. Bond is charged with robbing the mail at that place, some twelve months ago, of registered letters and packages passing through his office, to the amount of between three and four thousand dollars.

On getting wind of the intention of the government officials to arrest him, Bond escaped to Texas. A description of Bond being sent over the wires, he was arrested, as well as to other sections of the country, a day or two ago from which Lanier received a telegram from Sheriff Long, of Leon county, Texas, that Bond was in Jewett, when Inspector Lanier replied by telegraph to arrest and hold him until his arrival.

Prof. Ali's Curr.

Prof Allan Curr, of Scotland, lectures to-night in the lecture room of Dr. Palmer's church (First Presbyterian) on "Scoring the Devil," or the "Romance and Drama of the Church Revolution." The lecture is for the benefit of the Sunday school of the church, and Prof. Curr is an able and eloquent orator. Prof. Curr is an eloquent and brilliant scholar, and those who go to hear him to-night at Dr. Palmer's church will not only contribute to a christian cause, but be richly repaid in the literary feast they will receive. Prof. Curr visits us with the highest possible recommendations, and wherever he has lectured has received the certain encomiums of the press and of scholars and divines.

The Upper Bethel To-night.

The friends of the bethel will be in heavy force to-night to participate in a complimentary concert to the British ship Victoria, Capt. Holt, Wales, commanding. It will be remembered that the priest and people have left their own parishes for this place. They are very demonstrative, and wholly Mr. Sullivan or any other Irishman who has become great. So Mr. Sullivan called his countrymen in his service and prepared a reception for Mr. Reed. Your Kerry Patcher is at home only in his own dooryard (which is conventional) and refers from embarrassment if forced to become conspicuous elsewhere, so the reception was arranged for such a time as Mr. Reed should be found within the sacred centres of the Patch. When word came, through Mr. Sullivan, that Mr. Reed was to appear the Patchers fitted out in force, full armed (with shillalahs soft stones) and full uniformed (with brogues of blue and napless hats). Mr. Reed promptly put in an appearance, saw the Patch in array, and misconstrued the intent. There are stories still afoot of how he flitted through the streets in the twilight that evening like a ghost, or a canine with a can tied to his tail. In some mysterious manner he recognized Sullivan as the instigator, and he believes that Sullivan sought his life. Sullivan is innocent and most deeply grieved; but if you find the great base ball manager's name in the columns of the Republican, it will be when Dave Reed is no more.

Personal.

Mr. Eugene German has completed his arrangements for reopening his pavilion, corner of Chippewa and Third streets, and leaves this morning for Chicago and Cincinnati to engage his company and to order a splendid tent. He proposes to open on or about the 1st of December with a first class company and the most complete and comfortable arrangements for the audience. Mr. German deserves success, as he is both industrious and enterprising, and as he is known to be so favorable it is unnecessary to say more of him.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE DE L'OPERA.

This evening then, the French Opera house on Bourbon street opens its doors for the season with a full complement of imported artists, only three or four of whom are known here. The opera to be presented is Gounod's beautiful opera of Faust, with Mesdames Vilanova, Coudray and Rouzin and Messrs. Vaidejo, Berlioz as the debutante. As we have already said the general rehearsal on Saturday last indicated much care on the part of the management in the mise en scene, and it only remains for the singers to present artistic qualities to the audience. As the matter of voices that can only be judged by actual performances and even then, not in a single opera should the singers be judged alone, for, if favorably or unfavorably. However, it is probable that Mr. Hayes, the Manager, this evening, will catch the sympathy of the public at the start. Both Mlle. Vilanova and Mme. Coudray will please, to say the least. As to the tenor, Mr. Vaidejo, while he has relevant artistic qualities, nothing can be said of his voice as yet. He will only be judged by the performance which is not easily dissipated, and should he come out of the fray victorious his triumph will be all the greater. This is his first premiere danseuse, will doubtless show to advantage in the ballet, but the question the house will be a full and brilliant one.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The rain storm yesterday evening seriously affected the attendance at all the theatres. Miss Maude Granger appeared in "Her Second Love," and while there is nothing in the piece from her personal beauty, grace and dramatic talent to give an interest to the elaborate and excellent performance that makes it entertaining. The play will be repeated this evening under more favorable auspices.

ST. CHARLES THEATRE.

The first performance of the new opera "Hamzé" was given last night and as usual, with an initial performance, particularly of such pretensions as this, it was not so smoothly report of it. The Duff opera company, in Miss Juch, Messrs. Swendsen and Campobelle, Wines and others, did all in their power to give the music of "Lakme," but as so much of the effect depends upon the orchestra, ballet and special scenery, that it is impossible for a traveling company to meet all of these requirements, and for that reason, operas, requiring such elaborate preparation should not be attempted. To criticise a performance under circumstances so unfavorable would hardly be just to the really meritorious performers who do their part so well. The opera is a piece of musical composition, and should be heard by all lovers of the art.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

A good company appeared last night at the Grand, introducing Miss Emily Rigl and Harry Lacey in the play of "The Planter's Wife" in the leading characters. Miss Charlotte Thompson was seen in this piece some years ago and pronounced a most favorable impression. Miss Emily Rigl was entrusting in this comparison and possesses youth, beauty, grace and talent and captures her audiences, that are charmed by her exquisite grace and effective acting.

The woman discovered Billon on the corner of Canal and Rampart, and desire to arrest informed Officer Ramos of the robbery, but when the officer approached the direction of Billon he ran. The officer, seeing he was too fast for him, and after a run of about a mile and a half, overhauled him, and shortly afterwards was behind the bars of a cell in the third precinct station.

The attention of our readers is called to the announcement of the obsequies of Mr. T. W. Bothick, funeral director, No. 137 Gravier street. Mr. Bothick has been in business in this city for the past 7 years, and certainly no more kind and generous friend or more honest and enterprising citizen ever achieved and maintained success in the same vocation of life. We claim no credit for recommending him, for one can see at a glance, both as to his proficiency in his calling and integrity as a man. He has just returned from an extended tour through the West and North and East on business connected with his establishment, and came home thoroughly invigorated in health and spirits. His wife and daughter, by whom he was accompanied, have also arrived and are highly delighted with their travels. Mr. T. W. Bothick is a reputed citizen of good standing in his line to be found in the city.

The Townsend Will.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE CASE BEFORE JUDGE HOUSTON.

This morning in the civil district court, division B, before Judge Houston, the case of Tourville sykes, who applies to be appointed testamentary executor of the last will and testament of the late Kate Townsend was tried. The case had been continued from Friday last, at the request of T. B. Rocher, counsel for the absent heirs. Sykes was present in court, as also several women of the demimonde, late inmates of No. 40 Basin street. He looked well and did not limp as much as he did Friday, from his wounded leg.

The following witnesses were summoned and sworn for the plaintiff:

Patrick Duffy, 296 Bienville street; Wm. Gaffney, 296 Bienville street; Wood-ruff, James Gullee, Barker Harrison, Mr. Lyman, corner Villere and Customhouse streets; Clara Fisher, Basin and St. Louis streets; Wm. Cullen, Melpomene street, and Mme. Nowell, Lexcia Roberts, Mary Jades street; Mollie Johnson, 40 Basin street; W. A. Bienvenu, 15 South Claiborne street; T. M. Bugian 15 South Claiborne street.

The case was opened by Judge Houston refusing the application of Mr. Rocher, counsel for absent heirs, for a continuance for 10 days.

As there was no evidence that the will is a forgery, the court ordered the will to be registered but did not sign the order.

The counsel for absent heirs then filed another application for continuance, on the ground that Sykes had been remanded to the criminal court on the charge of murder and was not bonded for bail.

Mr. Rogers offered in evidence the certificate of the Recorder of the First District, to show that the signature to Sykes objected to the evidence offered by counsel for absent heirs, he contended that the certificate did not amount to any thing.

The counsel for absent heirs then asked for an order from the first recorder's court for the production of the prisoner, Sykes.

Not one word of testimony was adduced in the trial of the will, the court ordered the will to be registered without prejudice to absent heirs.

The case was still going on at the close of this report.

St. Charles Avenue.

THE PAVING MATERIAL ORDERED—THE WORK TO BE COMPLETED WITHIN EIGHT MONTHS.

In view of the great interest felt in the paving of St. Charles avenue, a reporter of the STATES called upon Mr. Tupper, agent of the Barber asphalt paving company, to ascertain from that gentleman what steps were being taken toward the commencement of this great and important work, concerning which there has been so much discussion, and to satisfy themselves of the merits of which a committee of the City Council visited Washington city and Pittsburg, themselves, by careful inspection, of the quality of Barber asphalt pavement laid in that city by the Barber asphalt paving company.

To the questioner's inquiry, Mr. Tupper responded that in large contracts it was necessary to provide an immense amount of material, and the pavement with sheet asphalt, which Mr. Tupper was now on the eve of entering upon, to the satisfaction of the City Council visited Washington city and Pittsburg, themselves, by careful inspection, of the quality of Barber asphalt pavement laid in that city by the Barber asphalt paving company.

To the questioner's inquiry, Mr. Tupper responded that in large contracts it was necessary to provide an immense amount of material, and the pavement with sheet asphalt, which Mr. Tupper was now on the eve of entering upon, to the satisfaction of the City Council visited

For this work it would be necessary to use 5700 tons of crude Trinidad asphalt, and vessels to bring this material to New Orleans are either running here or under the charter of the company, en route from Trinidad.

Bids were being received for other material needed in the work, which includes 10,000 cubic yards of fine sand, 10,000 cubic yards of coarse sand, 25,000 tons of broken stone pebbles, or shell, as needed.

These are in the estimate for St. Charles avenue, which is being measured and staked.

Mr. James Hughes, the master builder of the Barber asphalt pavement in Washington City, has come to New Orleans for the express purpose of superintending the construction of a vacuum furnace, which will be fully completed in time to commence work on St. Charles avenue. It will be remembered that in the description of the Barber asphaltum refinery, on Louisiana avenue, which appeared in the STATES some weeks ago, the process of refining asphaltum by boiling it in a battery of eight stills, and then in a vacuum furnace, was described. Each of these stills was surmounted by a cone-shaped funnel of boiler iron that received the product from the boiling asphaltum and conducted the vapor through a flue back into the furnace, where it is consumed.

Asphalt, when taken from the earth, contains, besides pure asphalt, water, chloride of sodium and a small quantity of sulphur. Under a high temperature, often as high as 700° Fahrenheit, chemical changes, and other matter by chemical combinations, assume a different sulphuric combination by which, combining with extremely disagreeable odor, very often excessively annoying to the neighborhood. It was found by experiment that by the vacuum tight pipes extending from the receptacle which contained these gases that they would be consumed in the furnace, and a neighbor living on Saturday's evening, overtor of the process of asphalt paving, conceived the idea of diverting through a pipe above the boiling mass a jet of steam which would create a partial vacuum in the boiling mass, and vapor, which having their exit below, accumulated.

In a furnace so constructed in Washington City the vacuum cock, introduced to the steam pressure, had such force that instead of permitting gases to escape, even from a leaky vessel, the vacuum was filled with atmospheric air and the gas was forced into the furnace.

A similar furnace with a chimney forty feet high is being constructed at the refinery on Louisiana avenue, and any one desiring to see it in practical operation can do so by calling upon Mr. James Hughes.
